CONTENTS

Foreword by Louis Keith, MD, PhD	vii
Introduction by Althea Hayton	1
PART ONE: The death of a twin	7
1. Rediscovering my twin Anim Forjindam My twin and I were born prematurely and my twin died shortly after birth.	8
2. Twin Traditions Worldwide for Life, Death and mourning Elizabeth A. Pector MD The grief journey for a bereaved twin varies greatly throughout the world.	15
Footprints: a poem by Elizabeth Pector	27
3.And then there was one Audrey Sandbank The loss of a twin is somehow perpetuated in the survivor.	28
4. Helping multiple loss families Lynne Schulz Society has been slow to help multiple pregnancy loss families.	40
5. The death of a twin Dr Elizabeth M. Bryan The surviving twin often suffers profoundly from the loss and may need lifelong support.	50

6. The surviving twin	64
Carolyn Dawn PhD
The psychological, emotional and spiritual effects in the adult of twin loss that occurred in utero or at birth.
Wretched: a poem by Nick Owen	75
7. A story of an identical twin who lost her sister at birth	76
Bryony Goode (from a book by Joan Woodward)
My identical twin sister was stillborn but it was much later when I realised the profound impact of this loss.
The womb/tomb - a feeling through time:	91
a poem by Richard Moore
PART TWO: “Vanishing twin” phenomenon	93
8. The frequency and survivability of natural twin conceptions	94
Charles E. Boklage Ph.D
Losing one or both offspring from a twin pregnancy is too common to be called phenomenal.
In life in death: a poem by Nick Owen	99
9. What vanishing twins may be telling us	100
Dr Kerron Harvey
Cerebral palsy has been attributed to injury during a difficult birth, but research has shown that this is seldom the case.
In the valley: a poem by Ana Ruiz	105
10. Where did it go?	106
Cortney Davis MA, RNC, APRN
Linda was pregnant with twins but by the end of the first trimester one twin had vanished.

PART THREE: Do we remember the womb?	111
11. Martha - A case study	112
Althea Hayton
Martha's story proved to be far more complex and interesting than we could possibly have imagined at first. It has been a hard road for her.
12. Babies are conscious	122
David Chamberlain PhD
Newborn babies have been trying for centuries to convince us they are sensing, feeling, thinking human beings.
13. Memory access to our earliest influences	138
David Hartman, MSW and Diane Zimberoff, M.A.
An adult in hypnotherapy can age regress to age one or two or the womb, and can 'know' certain information.
14. Mythology and the womb twin	152
Nick Owen
The theme of twinning is reflected in both ancient and modern myths and fairy tales.
The journey to Ixtlan: a poem by Ana Ruiz	168
PART FOUR: The psychological effects on the survivor	169
15. When half of you is missing	170
Tracey Williams
Before Tracey found her wombtwin, she was slowly and compulsively starving herself to death.
A wart on the nose of Darwin:	183
a poem by Richard Moore

16. The Vanishing Twin Syndrome, and the reality of the trauma the loss leaves behind	184
Dr John James
We need full consciousness of the moment of death to dissolve the disharmony this has created.
17. The gift of a vanished twin	198
Denice M. Moffat MS, DVM, ND
I was told about my twin during Scott Walker's Neuro-Emotional Technique class.
18. Suicide and pre- and perinatal psychotherapy	210
Shirley A Ward MEd. DipEd.
Hidden factors relating to suicide have their roots in the pre- and perinatal period.
19. Finding the artist	228
Althea Hayton and Mary Beth
Together we discovered that Mary Beth was born a twin but conceived as a triplet.
20. From discovery to letting go: my healing journey	238
Eloise de Hauteclocque
When I discovered my twinship it made such sense.
APPENDICES	250
A. Support and information for surviving twins	251
B. Indications of the loss of a twin in pregnancy	254
C. Surviving twins and wombtwin survivors research questionnaire	257
